

The Lunar or Monthly Cycle

To finding work & closing deals

It takes $27\frac{1}{2}$ days for the moon to complete its cycle, and that cycle can be an important one in planning your work schedule — or your schedule finding work.

The most important time in the lunar cycle is when the moon is over your Ascendant. This will usually be the busiest time of the month for you and you will tend to look better to others at this time. Therefore it is a good time for job interviews or for closing deals in your favor.

The moon has a pulling force on everybody, and when it is in your ascendant position, it pulls people in your direction. Conversely, when the moon is in its opposite place, six signs away, you will generally find things a bit quieter and less likely to turn out in your favor.

The second time of importance in this cycle is when the moon is in the same sign as your sun. At this time you will likely feel a monthly energy peak. When the moon is opposite your sun, you'll likely feel an energy low and be more likely to catch a cold as well (seems to relate to health).

The full moon produces a state of tension and excitement in everything, thus the time surrounding a full moon might color your judgement with these feelings. For this reason, the full moon is a better time for partying and making love than for doing important work that requires a steady hand. Not a time for business deals because everyone will feel slightly on edge.

The new moon also produces some tension, but not nearly as much, and it's much easier to work creatively.

The Solar or Yearly Cycle

↳ Business activity & life force energy

One may look at the position of the sun at any time of year as a direction from which a positive, favorable, "sunny" pull is being exerted upon us all. When that pull is coming from the same directions as your ascendant, you get the benefit of that positive energy when people see you or deal with you. Thus that time of the year will be busier for you and will often serve as the real starting point of your year in the professional sense. This can even be the case when you are in a profession where most of the work is done at a time of year when the sun is not near your ascendant.

Sometimes there just isn't any work at your best time of year, so your best time is regularly wasted. It is better to choose a profession in an industry where the major jobs and commissions are handed out at the time of year where the sun is passing over your ascendant. This will automatically put you at the head of the line, all other factors being equal. When there is a need to be hired, you'll be the first to get it.

When the sun is at your descendant, you are likely to experience a quiet period in which less happens in general and fewer opportunities come your way. If you can take a vacation at this time, do so. You won't be missing much.

The other solar cycle worth considering is the one pertaining to solar return. This is a trend that will follow you to the grave. It has been noted that statistically people are more likely to die in the months further away from their birthday than the months surrounding it.

For whatever reason, it would appear you have more real life force working for you around your birth date, and 6 months away from it you have less energy and are more susceptible to health problems.

Naturally, the relative position of your Ascendant and your natal sun determine a sort of double rhythm for the year such that:

Transit Sun (conjunction) Ascendant:

- Business activity peak

Transit ☽ or Node ☽

- Energy / Life force peak
